Interested in Uni study overseas for a career in acting, music, theatre or dance?

If you are interested in performing arts study, admittedly it is difficult to know where to start. Are you a dancer, a musician, an actor or interested in all three? Do you want a conservatory program or a conservatory-style program where you are also encouraged to explore other liberal arts courses?

The good news is, the options are endless, but that in itself can add confusion to the already difficult question of: 'which performing arts programs should I apply to?'

A good place to start is researching universities that are listed at the top of performing arts rankings (according to QS World University rankings) - schools that have earned the reputation for being the best of the best thanks to their high calibre faculty, first class performing arts facilities and famous alumni.

Once you're ready to start learning more about each institution and building your shortlist, each university included in our rankings also has a profile page full of details about that institution, from available degree programs to facilities and tuition fees.

You can also meet many of the universities included in the QS World University Rankings at one of our events.

The program begins with a guest speaker presentation by a talented panel of Taronga Zoo Keepers, Educators, Human Resources, Taronga Training Institute staff and YATZ members in which students can learn about all aspects of caring for animals including the qualifications required, core responsibilities of a keeper, future career opportunities and more.

Justice for the Oceans – UNSW

21 August. 3pm

Healthy oceans are fundamental to a healthy planet. From phytoplankton, the tiny ocean plants that produce the oxygen we breathe, to the rich diversity of other ocean plants and creatures, we depend on our oceans to survive and thrive.

But our oceans are both under threat and pose a threat. Pollution, overfishing and the destruction of coral reefs are killing them from within, while the impacts of climate change – rising sea levels and storm surges – are transforming the ocean from friend to foe for the many millions who live on the coast.

Globally-renowned ocean defender Dr Ayana Elizabeth Johnson is clear: saving the oceans is key to fighting the climate crisis. Join us for a conversation between Ayana Elizabeth Johnson and leading Australian marine scientist Emma Johnston

The supersonic development of several highly-effective COVID-19 vaccines has shown what can be achieved.

So why, despite today's researchers, clinicians and innovators having so many powerful tools at their disposal, do so many promising breakthroughs take so long to reach the doctors' consulting rooms?

From the tangible impact of genomics and big data, and the huge potential of personalised medicine, to the creative use of new technology, hear from a panel of world class medical experts – Anushka Patel, Louisa Jorm, Anand Deva and Joseph Powell with Vlado Perkovic – as they discuss key discoveries, and what the future of medicine could look like for us all.
